without the dreadful sacrifice of life which has hitherte attender African colonies composed chiefly of Europeans, and the importance of which to the interests of our commerce, would be incalculable. You will see by the documents I now bansmit to you, the necessity of having a British authority in this part of the world, what would have become of the unfortunate people, and vessels in distress, which we have rehived had not the British flag been on this island

I do most humbly and carnestly advise that some further steps be taken to retain possession of this beautifne island, a that some spot on the opposite coast, or up the Niger

Note: Analysis is only available for the NYAS, RAI, RCP, and RGS archives at this time. Other archives will be included as they complete processing and all corresponding content is uploaded.

Collocation of terms refers to the instances in which words appear in pairs or simple phrases in a document or selection of documents within the Wiley Digital Archives. Common articles, such as "the" are not included. The Collocation tool uses the initial search term as the first part of any pairing discovered and includes only collocates that occur more than 4 times within an archive – thus establishing a pattern.
